

New RINA website points the way on certification in the marine sector

GENOA-based classification society RINA has launched a new website www.leonardotest.com which is designed to enhance access to its wide variety of certification services in the marine sector.

RINA has a long tradition of excellence in the certification of products and services associated with safe and efficient maritime transportation and pollution prevention. The new website is aimed at facilitating access to relevant data in a highly interactive environment, providing clear guidance about the steps to be followed for obtaining the required certification. The website is organised into five main sections covering:

- Product certification and manufacturers' approval according to the RINA rules (or other recognised standards).
- Certification of equipment according to EU Directive 96/98/EC as amended (MED).
- Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) certification according to EU Directive 89/686/EC as amended.
- Certification of engines according to MARPOL Annex VI.
- Certification of service suppliers in accordance with IACS Unified Requirement Z17, Procedural Requirement 34 and relevant RINA rules.

The website is available in English, Italian, Chinese, Spanish, Turkish and Korean language versions. Its navigation levels also provide access to documents and services which are already available on RINA's corporate website www.rina.org and the marine website www.marine.rina.org

RINA is one of the oldest classification societies and certification companies in the world. Established in Genoa in 1861 to serve the marine industry, today it spans the globe as a multinational and multi-faceted company, sharing its knowledge and experience through a wide range of services which help industries and the community to improve their businesses and quality of life. RINA's services cover the environment, energy, transportation, logistics, safety, quality and social responsibility
